

Police Truck

That's right! You could consider Dewayne Richardson's '82 Dodge a police truck. The Fancy Gap, Virginia, resident just finished installing a late-model, ex-police-car 318 engine into his pickup. The motor was completely rebuilt, including new 9.1:1 pistons, a cam-and-tappet package from a 340 muscle-car and a 600-cfm Carter AFB four-barrel carburetor. Dewayne dressed it up with chrome valve covers and a chrome air cleaner. The 15-inch Cragar Astro Star wheels are the only giveaway that this Dodge isn't all it appears to be. Dewayne assured us that he doesn't exceed the legal speed limit.

Place Your Hands On The Hood

We aren't sure what Chip Kitchen of Madison, New Hampshire, does for a living, but if you take one look at his '93 GMC Typhoon, it's not hard to guess what he'd like to do. Officer Chip says that his forest-green-with-gold-flake Typhoon is one of only a few with that color scheme. It has 18 high-output strobes, a 200-watt siren/air horn and a 100-watt Kenwood two-way police radio. Chip tells us that the police radio even has a read-out view screen and a scrambler. We'd bet that no one speeds in Chip's neighborhood. He says that the 35th Anniversary Corvette in the photo is his, too, but we don't believe him. It probably belongs to an unsuspecting motorist that he's pulled over. The folks of Madison must sleep better knowing that Chip is on patrol.

Class Act

Long-time Sport Truck reader Bob Saunders perused our November '94 Readers' Trucks cover section and decided he'd send us a photo of his pickup. The '94 Chevy Silverado has been lowered using a Bell Tech 4/6 drop kit. Chuck Noriega Tire in El Monte, California, did the install and recommended that Bob try a set of Cooper Avenger tires to go with his Boyds wheels. The Downey, California, resident says that he likes the ride and feel of the Coopers, but he also likes the fact that they're made in the USA. The stock mirrors were replaced, a smoothy bumper and roll pan were added and a fiberglass tonneau from Gaylord's covers the bed. Bob says that he's currently looking through his back issues of Sport Truck for ideas on an exhaust system and a power pulley kit.
